Bank of America set on fire in Portland

Posted on January 1, 2023

Last night I broke into a Bank of America in Portland, Oregon and started a large fire. According to news reports, the fire grew quickly and took firefighters more than an hour to extinguish.

I attack for revenge against capital for the hell it creates, to break the illusion of police control that usually protects it, and just because I can.

Bank of America funds the Atlanta Police Foundation and a thousand other projects of control. Earlier that day, the six friends in Atlanta charged with "domestic terrorism" were released from jail. May this fire bring them some warmth in winter.

Long live anarchy!

A word of advice

Cops & feds are out here (on the interweb). You should practice good security culture by only submitting to this site or the email while using a secure network like Tor, ideally on top of a secure operating system like Tails or Whonix. If you are sending to the email use an end-to-end encrypted email service like Protonmail, or a single use, throwaway email like tempr.email.

Learn more about digital security culture from CrimethInc, the NAALPO, or the EFF.
